Sargent of Arm Report: N/A

Web Chairman: N/A

Social Chairman: N/A

Rules Chairman/Committee: It was brought up of golf balls crossing a hazard and ending up out of bounds. If a golf ball crosses a red or yellow hazard line and there is O.B. afterwards, the golf does not have to play the ball as a lost ball. The golf ball crossed the hazard and the hazard back's up to the out of bounds boundary, the ball last crossed the field of play through the green through the hazard. Some of the players in the club championship played their ball as an out of bounds and if they were to look at the course set up, they could have played their ball at the last point where the ball crossed the hazard. Not O.B. Remember to always play two (23) balls and get a ruling once you complete the round if you aren't sure what the ruling is.
